

1 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
2 DISTRICT OF NEBRASKA

4 Omaha, Nebraska,
5 August 14, 1956,
6 10:00 a. m.

7 Court room seating and arrangements as 8 directed by United States Marshal William Raab.

9 Entrance upon bench of the Honorable Harvey M.
10 Johnsen and the Honorable Joseph W. Woodrough, Judges
11 of the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit; 12 the Honorable John W. Delehant, Chief Judge, United 13 States District Court, District of Nebraska.

14 Formal opening of court by United States
15 Marshal William Raab.

16
17 JUDGE DELEHANT: Ladies and gentlemen, the 18 court is convened for the solemn and pleasant purpose of 19 the taking of the oath of a judge of this court, a newly 20 designated member of the court.

21 Because the ceremony which will shortly 22 transpire will be a distinctively judicial function I take the 23 precaution, although I deem it quite unnecessary, of 24 emphasizing the circumstance that the exhibition of any 25 applause or demonstration would be inappropriate, so if any one of you should feel moved to applaud at any stage of the proceeding let him or her refrain from doing so.

I am led to believe that the Honorable Richard E. Robinson, a member of the bar of this court, has been nominated as a judge of this court in succession to the late Chief Judge James A. Donohoe, and that his nomination has been confirmed.

Recognizing Mr. Robinson, I presume to inquire, sir, whether that understanding is correct?

MR. ROBINSON: That is right, Your Honor.

JUDGE DELEHANT: Mr. Robinson, have you received and do you now have in your possession your formal Commission as a judge of this court?

MR. ROBINSON: I do, Your Honor.

JUDGE DELEHANT: May I respectfully request that you deliver it to the Clerk and that upon its delivery the Clerk read the Commission.

(Thereupon the Clerk read the Commission)

JUDGE DELEHANT: Mr. Robinson, I now respectfully inquire of you whether you are prepared and now desire to take the oaths appropriate to your office?

MR. ROBINSON: I do so desire, Your Honor.

JUDGE DELEHANT: With all persons in the court room standing, the oaths will now be administered.

(Thereupon the oaths were administered to

1 (Mr. Robinson by Judge Delehant)

2 I respectfully ask that you sign the two oaths
3 which are delivered to you by the Clerk and then hand 4 them to me for completion.

5 (Thereupon Judge Robinson signed, and 6 Judge Delehant completed the oaths)

7 I now respectfully ask you, Judge Robinson, 8 to rise and assume the robe of your office, assisted by 9 your sons, Thomas Robinson and John Robinson.

10 (Execution of robing)

11 Now, escorted by the Marshal you will 12 assume your position upon the bench.

13 (Judge Robinson assumes his position upon 14 the bench)

15 Ladies and gentlemen, it is appropriate that, 16 though quite briefly, remarks fitting for the occasion be 17 offered by a selected group of gentlemen who are present 18 this morning. It is my privilege, very briefly, to invite 19 them to speak.

20 First I present a gentleman who, by virtue 21 of his office, will find himself in daily contact with the 22 new judge. Mr. William C. Spire, United States Attorney
23 for the District of Nebraska.

24 MR. SPIRE: May it please the Court.

25 JUDGE DELEHANT: Mr. Spire..

MR. SPIRE: On behalf of myself and for the entire staff of the United States Attorney's office, I wish to extend to Judge Robinson our sincere wishes for a long, happy and productive judicial service. As you are aware, the United States Attorney's office shares in large part with the court the responsibility for the fair and timely administration of justice in our district. I want to assure Judge Robinson, and of course, Judge Delehant, that we will devote our efforts to maintain and further the spirit of respectful cooperation which has in the past characterized our relationships with the court and which will, we trust, be of assistance to you in the discharge of your responsibilities. We are, in a very active sense, officers of the court and as such we regard it not only a duty but a very real pleasure and privilege to serve with, and under the guidance of, the judges of our district.

Again, Judge Robinson, our personal and official congratulations.

JUDGE DELEHANT: The relationship between the bench and bar in a very real sense is one of mutual interdependence. Certain representatives of the bar are present this morning for the purpose of extending the greetings of the bar, and first, Mr. Oscar T. Doerr, President of the Omaha Bar Association, of which Judge Robinson is himself a member.

with you as a colleague, can testify to your qualifications for the high office to which you have been appointed. You have been an active member of our association; you have accepted posts of responsibility in the association and have carried them out; you have served our community in civic offices; your long experience in the general practice, your acquaintance with the life of this community and of our state and your concern for the best interests of our country, make your selection to us a particularly happy one.

We wish you happiness and satisfaction in the performance of the duties of this high office.

JUDGE DELEHANT: The President of the American Bar Association, Mr. E. Smythe Gambrell, has taken note of this occasion and has designated as his personal representative to participate in it a member of the bar of this court, and of Omaha.

Mr. Barton H. Kuhns.

MR. KUHNS: May it please the Court, Judge Robinson. On behalf of Mr. H. Smythe Gambrell, President of the American Bar Association, I want to extend to you his warm and heartfelt congratulations on this memorable occasion, and his wish that you will have a successful and very happy career on the bench of this court. Mr. Gambrell has also asked me to appear not

1 only as his personal representative, but also in this 2 capacity as an official representative of the American 3 Bar Association, and particularly two of his committees,
4 the Committee on Federal Judiciary and the Committee
5 on Judicial Appointment, Tenure and Compensation, so
6 likewise, on behalf of the American Bar Association 7 and its Committees, which are particularly interested in 8 matters pertaining to the federal judiciary, I repeat the 9 same congratulations.

10 I think I should say that it is fitting and 11 proper that the American Bar Association and its 12 President should be represented at an occasion such as 13 this because it is one of the objectives and one of the 14 primary concerns of the American Bar Association that 15 the judiciary, not only the federal judiciary, but the 16 entire judicial system of the United States, should be 17 manned by competent judges of unquestioned reputation, 18 of outstanding ability and good character. There have been 19 a few occasions in the past when the American Bar
20 Association has found it necessary to take a position 21 unfavorably to the appointment of some designated 22 individual. Those occasions have been rare and infrequent, 23 but it has been the determined policy of the American Bar 24 Association for many years to offset the effect of its 25 attitude on such occasions by appearing on occasions such 1 as this.

2 The American Bar Association, its 3 Committees and its officers are most pleased and most 4 happy with the appointment that has been made, and it is 5 in that spirit that I am here as their representative in 6 order to convey their best wishes and their happiness in 7 your appointment.

8 I would like also to take this opportunity to 9 extend my own personal congratulations and to say that 10 while in a sense the American Bar Association, its 11 committees and its officers, may appear somewhat far 12 removed, actually you should know also that the lawyers 13 with whom you have worked in your community and in your 14 state are, I am sure, very highly pleased and happy over 15 the honor which has been bestowed upon you. So, both 16 personally and officially, I want to extend to you the very 17 best wishes for a long, successful and happy career on 18 this bench.

19 JUDGE DELEHANT: The co-equal legislative 20 branch of the government of the United States is 21 represented here this morning in the persons of members 22 of the bar of this court. First I have the honor to invite 23 to speak on this occasion the Honorable Jackson B. Chase, 24 a member of the bar of this court and a member of 25 Congress.

1 Judge Chase.

2 CONGRESSMAN CHASE: If the Court please, 3 Judge Robinson. I know I speak for the other members of 4 the lower house of Congress from Nebraska in offering 5 our congratulations. Judge Robinson, we are happy that 6 you have been honored by this appointment, but our 7 congratulations primarily are offered to the bench, to the 8 bar, to the public and to the people who are dealing with 9 the courts, the people who are interested in the 10 preservation of justice and in the proper administration of 11 the courts. Those are the groups who are entitled to 12 our congratulations. They are the real beneficiaries of 13 this appointment. I am satisfied that all of us who are 14 members of the bar, particularly, believe that the 15 administration of justice is the most important function 16 of government, because when the administration of 17 justice miscarries people lose faith in the courts, and 18 sooner or later the other agencies of the government will 19 fail. Governments that lose the true administration of 20 justice through the improper handling of judicial matters
21 will sooner or later topple into the dust.

22 I have known Judge Robinson for a number 23 of years as a fellow practitioner; for some time I had an 24 office on the same floor in the same office building with 25 him in Omaha; and I have known him as a citizen of the community. I think we should extend our thanks to Judge Robinson for dedicating his life to the administration of justice, for it means much for a man to set forth on a lifetime career in that honorable activity that is so important. But primarily, let me repeat, congratulations should extend first to the people whom he will serve, because they are the ones who realize that as long as the true administration of justice is left in good hands, such as Judge Robinson and his colleagues on the bench at this time, we have nothing to fear for the future.

I again say, good luck to you, God bless you, Judge Robinson, and may you serve long, I know faithfully, and with credit to yourself, but primarily to the state and the nation whom you will be serving.

God bless you, Dick.

JUDGE DELEHANT: In proceeding from the remarks of Congressman Chase and in presenting the next speaker, I think it not inappropriate to offer a testimonial of gratitude from the court. The court is deeply indebted to the congressional diligence of the two senators and four congressmen in Nebraska for the statesmanlike and constructive service which they rendered to the court during the year 1956, when, by amendment of the statutes of the United States, the entire structure of this Nebraska district was altered, with the

1 consequence that it has been made incredibly more
2 effective and economical. I may say that in the interval 3 just closing since the death of Judge Donohoe, it would 4 have been next to impossible to handle, with any measure 5 of efficiency, the work of the court, if we had had the 6 archaic structural organization which we had prior to the 7 enactment of that legislation.

8 The gentleman who is about to speak had a
9 very important and directing part in that effort. It is now 10 my high pleasure and privilege to present the Honorable 11 Roman L. Hruska, member of the bar of this court and 12 United States Senator from Nebraska.

13 Senator Hruska.

14 SENATOR HRUSKA: May it please the court.
15 First of all I should like to suggest that the assembly 16 present here today has come to render tribute to the 17 newly designated member of the bench; at the same time,
18 inherent in that tribute is a tribute to the present members 19 of the bench, both of the District Court and of the Court of 20 Appeals. The task of selecting a new member of the court
21 is always a difficult one. It was so in this instance 22 because in Nebraska, as in all jurisdictions, there is a 23 wealth of material from which to choose. We had,
24 fortunately or unfortunately, only one vacancy to fill. It 25 is hoped on the part of those who participated in the filling

1 of this vacancy that the non-selection of others who were 2 qualified and who are qualified will not be construed as a 3 reflection on them, but rather as a recognition of the fact 4 that there is only one vacancy, with many who are 5 perfectly capable and competent to fill it.

6 Most of us in this room have lived long
7 enough to have had assignments of importance given to us,
8 or have had the opportunity to assume positions or offices 9 of responsibility. Those who have found themselves in 10 that position are aware of the feeling of aloneness which 11 does come over one when the full impact of the position 12 or the assignment is made known to his consciousness.
13 I don't know when that feeling of loneliness might have 14 come to our new judge. It might have been on the 15 occasion when he received word of his nomination; it 16 might have been on the occasion when he received the 17 invitation to appear personally before the Senate Judiciary 18 Committee, as all candidates for a judgeship must do; or 19 it may have been on the occasion when the examination 20 before that august body occurred and when he was asked 21 about his ideas on the Rule and Shelley's case, or the 22 decision in the Dartmouth College case. I don't know when 23 that impact may have reached his consciousness, but I am 24 sure it has. Perhaps it was this morning in this very 25 impressive ceremony which we have just witnessed, but

1 but let me say to you, Judge Robinson, that whether or not 2 that moment has yet come, there will be many 3 repetitions of it in the future as you discharge the duties
4 of your office. Both as a lawyer and as a legislator, I can 5 assure you that after the record has been completed and 6 after all have left the court room and you are alone in 7 your office to consider that record, that you will again and 8 again experience that feeling of loneliness. It will be on 9 those occasions that you will draw upon all that has 10 transpired in your life theretofore by way of your 11 education, by way of the training you received at home and 12 the gratitude that you owe to your good parents, and 13 particularly your mother who is so proudly present today, 14 upon your experiences as a lawyer and as a responsible 15 member of this community and apply all of the lessons of 16 those years to the task which lies before you.

17 Not long ago members of the Senate bade 18 goodbye to a colleague who has served in that Senate for 19 eighteen years and who was retiring for reasons of health.
20 I recall well, and will always treasure, the parting words 21 which he gave to his colleagues there in that historic 22 chamber of the old Supreme Court room, that chamber 23 where the Senate met for many, many years, but where 24 many historic decisions were rendered and many famous 25 arguments were made by famous members of the bar.

1 The Senior Senator from Colorado, Mr. Milliken, in 2 bidding goodbye to his colleagues there said in 3 concluding:

4 "And may the Lord bless you and may He be 5 kind to you, and if you give Him half a chance, He will."

6 Judge Robinson, with our congratulations and 7 best wishes, may I repeat those words and say:

8 "May the Lord bless you and may He be
9 kind to you, and if you give Him half a chance, He will."

10 JUDGE DELEHANT: This court is honored today 11 by the presence of representatives of the judiciary of the 12 state of Nebraska. Invited to speak in their behalf is the 13 Honorable L. Ross Newkirk, Presiding Judge of the District
14 Court of Douglas County, Nebraska. Judge Newkirk.

15 JUDGE NEWKIRK: Judge Delehant, Judge
16 Robinson, Your Honors of the United States Circuit Court
17 of Appeals, Senator Hruska, Congressman Chase, 18 ex-brother on the bench, and all of you good friends.
19 Speaking in behalf of the judges of the district court of the 20 Fourth Judicial District of Nebraska, we deem it a high 21 privilege and honor to express to you, Judge Robinson, our 22 heartiest congratulations for your elevation at the hands of 23 the President and Senate of the United States to the federal 24 judgeship. We are very proud of you in attaining, 25 strictly upon merit, this important place in the 1 administration of justice to our beloved America. We 2 express to you our friendship, our confidence, our 3 respect, and every good wish as you enter upon what we 4 know will be an honorable and outstanding career on the 5 federal bench. Your many years of active and 6 successful practice of the law have made you closely 7 acquainted with the procedure of the courts and the duties

8 and functions of the judges presiding over them. Your fine 9 character, pleasing personality, outstanding ability and 10 capacity for hard work thoroughly fit you for the heavy 11 duties and responsibilities of your high office.

12 Speaking of hard work in the field of law, I 13 am constantly reminded of the admonition of a fine and 14 noble old lawyer of the Omaha bar, who is now gone.
15 "Young man," he said, "the difference between a good 16 lawyer and a poor lawyer is industry." Given integrity, 17 which may be expected, and intelligence which also may 18 be expected, might not industry also be said to be the 19 differential between good judges and poor judges?

20 This solemn and impressive swearing in of 21 Judge Robinson we have seen here today forcibly reminds 22 all of us judges of the similar oaths we took as judges and 23 the grave and at times awesome duties and 24 responsibilities we thereby assumed and now have. Not 25 only are we required to hear and decide issues involved

1 in the cases brought before us, but our conduct, both social 2 and private, should be, and actually is, a matter of public 3 concern. In the Canons of Judicial Ethics promulgated by 4 the American Bar Association, the standards of conduct 5 set forth for every judge in, and affecting, the 6 administration of his office are summarized in part in 7 Canon 34, which states that in every particular his conduct
8 should be above reproach. It behooves every one of us 9 judges to strive mightily to meet these high standards of 10 conduct both in the performance of our judicial duties and 11 in our personal living. Not only that, we should be 12 mindful of our duty to God. One of the scriptural 13 admonitions to the judges of old was, "Ye shall not be 14 afraid of the face of man for the judgment is God's."
15 Faced with seemingly imponderable issues for decision, 16 the judge's silent and humble prayer for divine guidance is 17 as appropriate in court or in chambers as it is in church 18 or anywhere else.

19 Judge Robinson, we say again that just as we 20 know your eminent qualifications for the high office of 21 judge of the District Court of the United States, we are as 22 surely confident that you will perform the duties of that 23 office with honor and distinction.

24 May God bless and guide you always.

25 JUDGE DELEHANT: The United States District

1 Court for the District of Nebraska is honored this morning 2 by the presence and participation in this ceremony of 3 two judges of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth
4 Circuit, also members of this bar. They accompany us 5 on the bench.

6 I have the honor first to present the 7 Honorable Harvey M. Johnsen, Judge of the United States
8 Court of Appeals, Eighth Circuit.

9 Judge Johnsen.

10 JUDGE JOHNSEN: Judge Delehant. I am glad to 11 have the occasion to join with this group in the 12 congratulations to Judge Robinson and to welcome him into 13 the federal judiciary.

14 First, it is the matter of congratulations.
15 Beyond the matter of personal congratulations, of which 16 I know Judge Robinson will receive many, I want to extend 17 my congratulations also to the members of his family, 18 his wife, his two sons, his mother, his brothers and 19 other relatives who are here present.

20 I have often heard the expression
21 "self-made man", but I have never met one. Back of all 22 that we are in life there is the fiber of those who touched 23 our lives, who made the contribution to the character, 24 who have given us the implements and the tools that 25 enable us to move forward. I know that Judge Robinson

1 is conscious of those things in his life. So again, I want
2 to say, congratulations to Judge Robinson,
3 congratulations to Mrs. Robinson, congratulations to his 4 two sons, and congratulations to Judge Robinson's mother 5 and to all his brothers.

6 Now, on the matter of welcome. Judge
7 Robinson is assuming here today not just an individual 8 position. It is true he has been designated as a judge of 9 the United States District Court for the District of 10 Nebraska, but he has taken on something that is broader 11 and larger than that, and that is the federal judicial 12 system. We don't function as an individual judge. We 13 don't function as an individual court. Permeating the entire 14 federal system is a sense of devotion, a sense of 15 dedication, a sense of integration that runs in the common 16 channel of the administration of justice clear down the 17 line. It is something that I can't explain to you who are 18 laymen. You who are lawyers will understand. You will 19 understand it in relation to the integration of the bar, the 20 common spirit that exists for the sake of moving forward 21 in a common cause." Perhaps I could give this illustration:
22 I have just come back from attending a seminar at New 23 York University of about twenty judges from all over the 24 country. We were trying to see the thing that has 25 happened in our courts that has been trying to move forward

1 and increase the efficiency of judicial administration.
2 We all agreed that one of the most notable things that had 3 happened in the broad field of the administration of 4 justice during the past twenty years was the spirit, the 5 instrumentalities which had come to permeate the entire 6 federal court system. "I shan't explain those to you.
7 This is not the occasion. Judge Robinson, as time goes 8 on, you will become conscious of the dedication, the 9 devotion of each one of us, not to our individual position, 10 but to that great common cause of administering 11 justice."

12 I shall close only reminding you of what 13 Judge Chase spoke a moment ago. The court's business 14 is, after all, the ultimate protection of equal liberty. It 15 permeates the entire federal system. Again I say, 16 Judge Robinson, you will comprehend more of that as 17 time goes on. You will feel that every federal judge in 18 the country, District Court, Appellate Court, Supreme 19 Court, is united in a bond for the general administration 20 of justice."

21 Again, Judge Robinson, my congratulations
22 and my welcome.

23 JUDGE DELEHANT: Lastly, from the bar of this 24 court, an invitation is offered for brief remarks to the 25 judge who, as I recall, is senior in point of his initial

1 Commission in the entire United States, for some time a
2 member of the bench of this court, the Honorable Joseph 3 W. Woodrough.

4 JUDGE WOODROUGH: I am very happy to be 5 here on this occasion. I like to be at weddings and I like 6 to be at inaugurations. I have such glorious recollections 7 of having once on a time taken the oath as judge, myself, 8 in this room, among friends, just as Judge Robinson is 9 today, but I have to struggle a little to express myself.
10 I have more practice in other kinds of remarks.
11 Sometimes I have to say they shall hang by the neck until 12 they are dead, but I would like to say something to Judge 13 Robinson expressive of the real felicitation that I feel 14 towards him. It is a glorious opportunity that is opening 15 up to him.

16 My mind goes back to one of the most 17 tactful men we have ever had in office, Jim Dahlman, 18 former Mayor of this city. I remember so well. Jim had 19 been in politics all his life. He started in politics way
20 out in the sandhills and at other places, in South Omaha, 21 and had come along and been all out in politics, and some 22 not on the exalted plane. Some of it was among more of 23 the rougher class. He said when any one of those fellows 24 who had crossed the bar and gone into office stood up to 25 take that oath, although he had known some of them who

1 fell down afterwards, he never knew any one of them who 2 did not at that time feel in his heart a hope and a strong
3 desire to do what was right and to do something to help
4 his country and fellowmen. And so, when I seek a word 5 of felicitation for Judge Robinson, who has the highest 6 qualifications and training, who has a knowledge of the 7 law and ethics, and who knows what is required and what 8 is appropriate, I hope and pray that some of these 9 ambitions and desires that lie behind this oath of his will 10 come true and that in the years to come he can do some 11 of the things he dreamed of doing and wants to do now that 12 he takes the oath as a federal judge.

13 JUDGE DELEHANT: As you will have noticed, 14 brevity in their observations has been practiced by all of 15 the gentlemen who have responded during this service to 16 the court's invitation to speak. That I, too, may avoid 17 a violation of the counsel of "the very soul of wit", I have 18 taken the precaution of setting down in type what I shall 19 presume now to say. And I shall address myself directly 20 to him in whose name and honor this ceremony is being 21 held.

22 Judge Robinson, may I welcome you
23 heartily to the service for which you have this morning 24 completed your formal qualification. There is, I shall 25 have to acknowledge, a selfish implication in my greeting.

1 I am comforted by the restoration to full complement of 2 the district's judicial man power. So, in welcoming you,
3 I am, to a measurable extent, thinking of the day by day
4 labors which you will perform in the court during the next 5 few years. And, believe me, you will have much work to 6 do. But I also and principally have in view the qualities
7 of mind and character that have prompted the President
8 to your appointment. You bring to the bench a competent 9 general and legal education and a substantial experience in 10 the practice of the law, a measure of industry with which 11 your brethren in the profession are familiar, and a high 12 degree of integrity and courage, both moral and 13 intellectual. Thus equipped, you prompt us of the court to 14 gratification over your selection, and to confidence in the 15 quality of the service which will characterize your 16 judicial career. For all of us this moment is happy and 17 auspicious.

18 And now, Sir, though I am aware that the 19 effort to which I beckon you will prove to be far from 20 easy, I respectfully invite you to offer such response to 21 the morning's event as may be both prompted by your 22 emotions and within your capacity to express.

23 Ladies and gentlemen, the Honorable 24 Richard E. Robinson, now Judge of the United States
25 District Court for the District of Nebraska.

1 JUDGE ROBINSON: Your Honors, Judge
2 Woodrough and Judge Johnsen of the Circuit Court of 3 Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, Chief Judge Delehant,
4 the Honorable Roman L. Hruska, United States Senator,
5 the Honorable Jackson B. Chase, Representative, Judges
6 of the District Court and Judges of the Municipal Court, 7 Mr. Kuhns, and through him the President of the 8 American Bar Association, Mr. William C. Spire, United 9 States Attorney, and all my brethren in the Bar, and 10 Friends.

11 I need not remind you that this is certainly 12 an unusual occasion for me. It is one that many years
13 ago I had never anticipated. I have moved from the active 14 side of a practicing lawyer in the city of Omaha, an 15 advocate at times, to this side of the bench. I know that, 16 hard as it may be for me this morning to control my 17 emotion, as I sit here and look out over my friends and 18 those who have come here to pay tribute to me, I feel 19 very humble, indeed. I know that as difficult as the task
20 may be this morning, it is probably the easiest one that I 21 shall ever have to perform sitting behind this bench. As 22 for the lawyers, I need not remind them that I shall expect 23 and solicit their support. I shall need your help, and on 24 occasion when you see the court moving into obvious 25 error, I shall expect you to point it out.

1 ceremony, the day's events will be ended.

2 The Marshal will now adjourn court.

3 THE MARSHAL: The Court will stand adjourned
4 subject to call.

5 Ladies and gentlemen, as soon as the 6 judges retire to chambers there will be a reception. I 7 request at this time that the members of the immediate 8 family proceed first; then the judges of the courts; and 9 then the general public.

10 Thank you for following instructions,

11 (Reception in Judges' chambers)
